IN THE CLAIMS

Please cancel claims 1-6 without prejudice.

Please enter the following new claims 7 - 12.

7. A combined system of automatic selling of products and services for automatic vending machines, wherein an automatic vending machine comprises:

a first display;

a plurality of product selection push buttons and a service selection push button;

a main control circuit;

a service module comprising:

service operating means;

a second display to which a payment means is assigned by the first display when a service option is selected;

service operating buttons;

service rendering means;

a service control circuit being controlled by the main control circuit;

the service control circuit being connected to a telephone line for providing an interactive service between a first end of the telephone line which a first user of the service, and a second end of the telephone line which is selected from a second user and a network enabling access to computer files.

8. A combined system according to claim 7, wherein the service control circuit comprises:

collecting means for carrying out a collection operation of a rendered service; control means for controlling the collection operation.

9. A combined system according to claim 7, wherein the connection to the telephone line permits connection to an operations center so that information is transmitted and received.

10. A combined system according to claim 7, wherein the service module is enabled to include a service selection and designation of the payment means button from the first display to the second display.

11. A combined system according to any of Claims 7, wherein the automatic vending machine is enabled to simultaneously and independently operate dispensing products while the service included by the service module is being rendered.

12. A combined system according to Claim 9, wherein the automatic vending machine is enabled to simultaneously and independently operate dispensing products while the service included by the service module is being rendered.